GEORGIA-PACIFIC AWARDS LEICHT NEW DISTRIBUTION BUSINESS

New business makes Leicht one of G-P's largest distribution centers nationwide

GREEN BAY, WI. -- (July, 2003) -- Georgia-Pacific, one of the world's leading manufacturers of tissue, packaging, paper, building products, pulp and related chemicals, has awarded Leicht Transfer & Storage Co. all of its third party consumer tissue products distribution shipping from Green Bay.

Leicht, a provider of supply chain services and part of Green Bay-based RGL Holdings, Inc., has operated as Georgia-Pacific's Distribution Center in Green Bay for West Mill product for a number of years. The new contract adds the East Mill product.

Butch Lambert, logistics director for Georgia-Pacific, said, "Leicht has done an excellent job of managing the Distribution Center floor operation and delivering real cost savings."

"Georgia-Pacific and Leicht entered into this relationship working together as true partners," said Bob Johnson, CEO of RGL Holdings, Inc. Johnson said that Leicht provides Georgia-Pacific with significant benefits, including greater efficiency, increased warehouse storage density, an experienced workforce with low turnover and a focus on continuous improvement.

Johnson added that the significant changes Leicht has implemented recently, including an injection of management talent and new technology, contributed to the new business being awarded.

About Georgia-Pacific

Headquartered at Atlanta, Georgia-Pacific is one of the world's leading manufacturers of tissue, packaging, paper, building products, pulp and related chemicals.
